

Education: Jeff Loux

University of California, Berkeley. College of Environmental Design. Ph.D. in Environmental Planning, 1987. Dissertation: "A Comparative Analysis of Local Groundwater Management Strategies in California."

University of California, Los Angeles. M.S. Geography, 1980. Thesis: "There are no Islands Anymore: An Analysis of Resource Development in Palau, Micronesia"

University of California, Santa Barbara. B.A. Environmental Studies/Geography, 1978. Thesis: National Science Foundation Funded: A Small-Scale Mariculture System.

---

Professional Experience

Director, Land Use and Natural Resources Program, University of California, Davis Extension, 2000-present and Adjunct Faculty, College of Environmental Design, Landscape Architecture Program, U.C. Davis.

Administer, develop courses, conduct research and outreach and teach in a professional education program with over 120 short courses, conferences and training sessions in land use planning and law, natural resource management, water policy, urban design; public policy and related topics for 4,000 participants annually with a $2.0 million budget. Adjunct appointment also includes undergraduate and graduate teaching in landscape architecture, environmental policy and water resource-related research.

Director of Planning Services, MIG, Inc., 1998-2000. Founded and managed a branch office for an 80-person urban planning, landscape architectural design and public involvement firm. The 8-member branch office specialized in land use and environmental planning, natural resources management/ water policy, facilitation/mediation, landscape architecture and park planning.

Community Development Director, City of Davis, 1992-1998. Administered a department of 30 professional and technical staff involved in planning, housing, environmental analysis, building inspection and redevelopment with a budget of $3.5 million. Projects included regional transportation, land use, zoning, general and specific plans, urban design housing, building inspections, environmental analysis, habitat conservation, agricultural and open space planning.

Assistant Planning Director, Santa Cruz County Planning Department, 1990-1992. Directed a 20-member advanced planning staff involved in specific plans, general plan, urban design, water quality and policy, environmental programs and agricultural land conservation.

Principal (1987-89, Senior Associate 1981-87), The Planning Collaborative, Inc. of San Francisco; Managed a 15-member professional staff on urban design, land use planning, environmental analysis and park design projects for local, regional and state governments.

---

Teaching Experience

Adjunct Assistant Professor, University of California, Davis, Landscape Architecture Program and Department of Environmental Science and Policy; 2002-2006. Instructor for various landscape studios and courses; also co-instructor for Environmental Planning and Policy Analysis (Lower Division) with Dr. Marcel Holyoak.

Instructor, University of California, Davis, Freshman Seminar Program; Spring 2001. Developed and taught a seminar entitled: "Water in California and the West."

Lecturer, University of California, Davis, 1993-2000. College of Environmental Design; Landscape Architecture Program: Taught upper division studio and seminar courses in Land Use Planning, Large-Scale Landscape Analysis, Urban Design, Advanced Communications and Landscape Architecture Lecture Series.

Lead Instructor, University of California, Davis, Extension, 1993-present. Created and Taught 50 Short Courses/Seminars for Professionals: Public Participation/Conflict Resolution, Urban Site Design, Land Use Planning, Water Resources Planning and Professional Planning Practice.

Instructor and Curriculum Development, U.S. Bureau of Land Management, 2001-2002. As part of an interdisciplinary team, developed and taught an intensive resource management, planning and NEPA course for the BLM. Course delivered to over 400 BLM personnel in 12 communities across the western U.S.

Visiting Lecturer, University of California, Santa Cruz, Environmental Studies Program, Winter 1992, Upper Division Regional and Environmental Planning Studio/Seminar.

Visiting Lecturer, University of California, Berkeley, 1984. Graduate Seminar in Environmental Planning, Department of Landscape Architecture.